<<中国的未来>>

内容概要

Standing at a new historical starting point, China's development is getting more and more attention in the world. In this book, with with languages and vivid cases, the writer has presented all kinds of problems emerged in the process of China's development. Accordingly, the writer has introduced the measures how government to solve these problems. On the basis of development methods behind pohcies, we can also acquire from the book that how China deal with a series of problems and contradictions in the face of economic and social development, and international relations. With China's ability rising, China as a big country, is becoming more open and confident and also. has more strength, resources and swing space to deal with the increasingly complex internal and external problems. Therefore, the future of China will be prosperous; the future of China will be democratic and governed by the rule of law; the future of China will be harmonious and civilized.
