章节摘录

How do Chinese women spend their free time when they are at home.~ Generally speaking, most of them enjoy watching TV, reading books, listening to music, shopping, doing home improvement and so on. Their preference has also changed. From this diagram we can find that watching TV, visiting friends and doing some shopping are the most popular home-based leisure activities. The percentage of listening to radio is just 40%. More Chinese women have come to enjoy reading books since they all know the importance of knowledge. Being very time-consuming, needlework and knitting have now become less popular. There are now few Chinese women feel like to do them than there were ten years ago. Using computer or surfing on the internet in 1992 was infrequent for Chinese women. But along with the development of technology, these activities are becoming more and more preferred. They use computer to do their work, to chat with their friends, to play games and gain the news. So it increases the fastest. From above analysis, we can get a conclusion that almost all Chinese women are happy with watching TV because it is very comfortable and interesting. During the ten years, its popularity doesn't change much.
