章节摘录

final prize. Whether the prize is signing with a major record label , having their designs published in Elle magazine , or just receiving a bundle of cash , contestants line up days in advance to be featured on these ever so popular television shows. But what possesses people to be filmed on camera and risk the horrible embarrassment they are bound to face ?

More importantly , why are people so interested in watching these types of shows ?

Shouldn't we be watching the news and staying informed about what is going on in the world instead of learning about who wants to become Paris Hilton's new best friend ?

If this is the case , then why is the entertainment industry continuing to produce these trashy and brainless shows ?

The number one reason why reality television shows are continuing to be produced is because they are cheap in more ways than one. Reality shows are inexpensive to produce because there are eager performers , who do not care if they make fools of themselves or if they have to perform embarrassing tasks in front of millions of people.
