章节摘录

版权页：插图： belief in the power and efficacy of ritual and benevolent government, at the age of 55, Confucius took his disciples to the Song, Wei, Chen, Cai, Qi and Chu, only returning to Lu at the age of 68. During this period, he went through all kinds of hardships and difficulties. He was misunderstood, treated with contempt, and persecuted, but he never changed his beliefs or gave up his mission. One day, Chang Tsu and Chieh Ni were at work in the field together, when Confucius passed by. He sent Tsze Lu to inquire about a ford. Chang Tsu said, "Who is he that holds the reins in the carriage there?" Tsze Lu told him, "It is Kung Chiu." "Really? It is Kung Chiu of Lu?" he asked incredulously. "Yes," was the reply, to which the other rejoined, "He well knows the ford." Chieh Ni said, "Are you not the disciple of Kung Chiu of Lu?" "I am," he replied. Then Chieh Ni said to him, "Disorder, like a swelling flood, spreads over the whole empire, and who will change this state of affairs? It is better to follow those who have withdrawn from the world altogether?" With this he fell back to his work. Tsze Lu, who had fallen behind his master, met an old man, carrying across his shoulder a basket for weeds. Tsze Lu said to him, "Have you seen my master, sir?" The old man replied, "Your limbs are unaccustomed to toil; you cannot distinguish the five kinds of grain; who is your master?" With this, he planted his staff in the ground, and proceeded to weed. When Confucius and his disciples came to the State of Song, senior officials there plotted to persecute him because they were jealous of his talent. Confucius fled to the place between the Chen and Cai states and lived by eating edible wild herbs. At that time many people did not understand Confucian theory and his way of spreading the theory.
