章节摘录

版权页：插图： Three decades have passed since 1981 when China's first foundation was established. During this period, the Chinese foundations have grown at a steady rate alongside by China's political, economic, social, and cultural changes. It can be observed that the Chinese foundations have experienced fundamental transformations and simultaneously advanced themselves in numerous aspects. This report is based on an independent study conducted by our research team. The main data on the Chinese foundations including their numbers, assets, income, expenses, and human resources were provided by the Chinese Foundation Center. The data on the functions of the Chinese foundations was built on a sampling survey conducted by our research team. A. The Transition of the Chinese Foundations in Number 140 foundations were registered in the 1980s; 386 foundations were registered in the 1990s; since 2000 there have been 1,388 foundations that gained their registration. It is clear that the Chinese foundations have increased in number in the last three decades. In particular, compared to the 1980s and 1990s, the recent decade witnessed the quickest and most increase on foundation registration. Whereas national foundations have increased at a relatively steady rate, local foundations have increased more rapidly. In the 1980s there were 111 local foundations that received registration, and in the 1990s the number was 340. After 2000 newly-registered local foundations were 1,312. From the 1980s to 1990s the newly-registered local foundations increased by 206%. The increase rate was 286% from the 1990s to the 2000s. As for national foundations, the newly-registered increased from 29 in the 1980s to 46 in the 1990s, and the increase rate was 59%. Compared to the 1990s, the newly-registered national foundations increased by 65% after 2000, from 46 to 76. In the 1980s and 1990s, about half of newly-registered foundations had a registration fund of 4 million-8 million yuan. After 2000 43.8% of newly-registered foundations had a registration fund of 2 million-4 million yuan. 40.9% of newly-registered foundations had a registration fund of 4 million-8 million yuan. Thus, among the foundations registered after 2000, the foundations with less registration funds increased. In terms of total assets possessed by the Chinese foundations, 46% of the top 100 foundations in the 2009 ranking list were registered after 2000, and 41% in the 1990s.
