章节摘录

Good morning , everyone . Today's lecture is about the popularity of English . As we all know , English is widely used in the world . Although English is not the language with the largest number of native or first language speakers , it has really become a lingua franca . Then , what is a lingua franca?The term refers to a language which is widely adopted for communication between two speakers whose native languages are different from each other and where one or both speakers are using it as a second language . For example , when an Indian speaks to a Singaporean using English , then English is the lingua franca . Then , actually how many people speak English as either a first or a second language? Some researchers suggested a few years ago that between 320 to 380 million people spoke English as a first language and anywhere between 250 to 350 million as a second language , and , of course , if we include people who are learning English as a foreign language all over the world , that number may increase dramatically . Then , we may ask a question , how did English get there? That is , how did English gain the present status of popularity? There are in fact a number of interlocking reasons for the popularity of English as a lingua franca . Many of the reasons are historical , but they also include economic and cultural factors that have influenced and sustained the spread of the language . Let's go through the reasons , one by one . ……
