内容概要

It is a great pleasure to welcome all participants of the Second International Conference on Computational Methods for Thermal Problems ( THERMACOMP2011 ) to Dalian. Computational and mathematical methods have had a profound impact on the understanding and advancement of engineering science and technology over the last few decades. The conference aims to convene a diverse scientific audience of mathematicians, physicists, engineers and computational scientists that have a common interest in modelling thermal problems. It is encouraging to learn that this conference represents an interdisciplinary forum of scientists with expertise ranging from heat conduction, convection and radiation to CFD and thermo-mechanical coupling. We hope that the interaction between scientists during the conference leads to new topics of research and new collaborations.
