章节摘录

版权页： 插图： This Amsterdam loff was designed as a public open space or squareworld.By placing volumes and elements in the open space,differentplaces are created without the use of walls,doors or hallways.The ele ments that structure the space,and the way people move through thehouse,are a pece of remaining structural wall,the stairs to fhe roof terrace,a big concrete kitchen isle and two “ boxes ” .One box contains asmall separate room that can be used as a nursery or study,the otheris part bathroom,and part toilet.This"bath—box"separates the sleepingarea from the rest of the house.A glass sliding door provides privacy in the bathroom and the sleeping area if necessary.
