章节摘录

Nigeria is a Federal Republic modeled after the United States , with executive power exercised by the president and with influences from the Westminster System model in the composition and management of the upper and lower houses of the bicameral legislature. However , the President of Nigeria is both head of state and head of government , and of a multi-party system. Nigerian politics takes place within a framework of a federal , presidential , representative democratic republic , whereby executive power is exercised by the government. Legislative power is vested in both the government and the two chambers of the legislature , the House of Representatives and the Senate. Together the two chambers make up the law-making body in Nigeria called the National Assembly. The highest judiciary arm of government in Nigeria is the Supreme Court of Nigeria. Nigeria also practices Baron de Montesquieu ' S theory of the separation of powers. The National Assembly serves as a check on the executive arm of government.

2.1.2.1.3 People and Environment Nigeria is made up of three large ethnic groups—the Hausa-Fulani , Yoruba , and Igbo—who represent 70% of the population. Another 10 % comprises of several other groups numbering more than 1 million members each , including the Kanuri , Tiv , and Ibibio. More than 300 smaller ethnic groups account for the remaining 20% of the population. However , these groups are similar in nature , thus melting all the boundaries to become a huge group. Most Nigerians speak more than one language. The country ' S official language , English , is widely spoken , especially among educated people. Apart from English , 400 native Nigerian languages are also spoken , out of which some are being threatened with extinction. Nigeria ' S Delta region , home of the large Oil industry , experiences serious oil spills and other environmental problems. Waste management including sewage treatment , the linked processes of deforestation and soil degradation , and climate change or global warming are the major environmental problems in Nigeria.
